

Salvatore, Metal Cutting Mechanic in his third year talks about his training at Hauhinco

1. How did you hear about Hauhinco?

I looked for job trainings with a technical background on the Internet. At an early stage of my research I came across the Hauhinco-Website. The company and the job description made me curious - only about two hours later I send out my application.

2. How was your start into the working life?

At the beginning everything was of course new to me. However I was integrated in the daily working life right from the start and quickly had a good working relationship with my colleagues. The other trainees became friends. To get up very early in the morning is not that bad and I quickly got used it. The upside of getting up early is to finish work at 2pm.

3. What do you like most about your work?

The best thing about my work is, that almost everything can be created with metal - thanks to the modern machines and to the learnt knowledge. It starts off with the simple things, such as manufacturing a bolt up to more complex tasks as for instance the production of miniature-engine.

4. What skills are necessary for the job of a Metal Cutting Mechanic?

First of all one should have an interest in technology. General manual skills as well as logical thinking and good math skills are also important.

5. My advice for future applicants:

As the job profile of a Metal Cutting Mechanic might be misleading and some people do not really know what the job is about, I recommend doing an internship in this field at Hauhinco. During an internship you can get an impression of the duties and responsibilities of a Metal Cutting Mechanic and also gain an insight into the professional working life. What I also recommend: Always work hard on your math skills and do not collect any inexcused absences.

“Logical thinking and math skills are important.”
